

Professional Development Procedure - Professional/General Employee Schemes

Section 1 - Purpose

(1) This procedure supports the Professional Development Policy by setting out the conditions and principles for the centrally coordinated professional development schemes targeted to Charles Sturt University's professional/general employees, specifically:

- a. study leave, and
- b. postgraduate study support.

Scope

(2) This procedure applies to professional/general employees, subject to the eligibility requirements stated for each scheme.

(3) Eligible employees may apply for one or both schemes described in this procedure, in addition to any other professional development support scheme that they are eligible for.

(4) The First Nations employees study support scheme is also available to First Nations Australian professional employees, see the Professional Development Procedure - First Nations Employee Schemes.

Section 2 - Policy

(5) Refer to the Professional Development Policy.

Section 3 - Procedure

Part A - Study leave

Scheme details

(6) The study leave scheme provides paid leave for eligible employees to carry out the requirements of a course of study. It is designed to encourage and support professional/general employees to undertake tertiary studies on a part-time basis in order to enhance their opportunities for career progression and professional development.

Eligibility

(7) The study leave support scheme is available to professional/general employees who:

- a. currently hold a full or part-time continuing or fixed-term appointment,
- b. have completed probation, and

- c. have satisfactory performance.

Approved courses of study

(8) Study leave applies to part-time studies delivered in any mode, e.g. self-paced, online or on-campus.

(9) To be approved, the course or nominated subjects must be:

- a. relevant to the employee's current appointment, or
- b. if supported by their manager, demonstrably relevant to the employee's career development or potential employment within the University.

Applications for study leave

(10) Study leave must be applied for through the Division of People and Culture website and must be approved by the employee's direct supervisor and the appropriate delegated officer.

Study leave entitlement

(11) The maximum entitlement for study leave is four hours per week for the duration of the academic session, where:

- a. full-time employees are eligible to apply for up to 4 hours per week,
- b. part-time employees are eligible to apply for a proportional amount of the maximum entitlement, based on their employment fraction at the time, and
- c. if study is self-paced, the amount of approved study leave is based on the number of weeks and volume of learning in the normal academic session for an equivalent course or subject.

(12) If an employee reduces their study load per session or undertakes less than the standard part-time load of their course, they must inform their manager who will review their approved amount of study leave.

Use of study leave

(13) Study leave may be used for private study, research, travel and attendance at compulsory lectures and practical classes held during work hours, or intensive schools. Study leave is not intended to cover short staff development activities that are conducted in-house or externally.

(14) Study leave will normally be taken as a weekly allocation and cannot be carried over or accrued, except where an employee has approval to use their study leave entitlement for an intensive school. In such cases, the total number of hours over the academic session must not exceed the maximum entitlement.

(15) In addition to the study leave entitlement, employees may also apply for special leave to attend and travel to/from examinations.

Conditions

(16) The following conditions apply to study leave:

- a. Approval of study leave is subject to the convenience and needs of the University, the work area's operating requirements and the individual making satisfactory progress with their studies. An employee who has been officially advised that their performance is unsatisfactory is not eligible for study leave and any previously approved study leave may be discontinued until the performance is deemed to be satisfactory.
- b. The course of study must be agreed to as part of the employee's current employee development and review scheme plan.

- c. If an employee fails a subject, study leave will not be approved for the purpose of repeating the subject and the employee must be able to demonstrate why further study leave should be approved for any other subjects in their course of study.
- d. Specific periods of study leave approved in each academic session must be re-negotiated at the commencement of each new session and if course and/or work requirements change.
- e. Employees must provide a copy of their admission/enrolment details and results for previous subjects in the course of study:
 - i. with their initial application and each ongoing application for study leave, and
 - ii. when requested by their manager or supervisor.
- f. Where an agreement cannot be reached between the employee and their manager in relation to the approved amount of study leave, the relevant delegated officer will determine the final amount of approved study leave.

(17) An employee may seek further support from their Division of People and Culture business partner where:

- a. an application for study time was not approved, or
- b. the amount of study time approved is insufficient for the employee to meet course requirements.

Responsibility of managers

(18) Managers must ensure that they:

- a. monitor progress and arrange regular progress meetings with their employees throughout the course of study, and
- b. make an equitable assessment and manage the study leave allocations within their teams, taking into consideration the study load of each individual and the operational requirements of each work area.
