Section 1 - Purpose

(1) Charles Sturt University (the University) aims to provide a safe, inclusive, and respectful environment where everyone can study, work and live free from gender-based violence, including sexual harm. This policy sets out the University's overarching principles and commitment to:

- preventing and responding to incidents of gender-based violence within University environments, and
- providing support for students and staff who have experienced or are experiencing gender-based violence in any environment.

(2) This policy supports compliance with:

- National Higher Education Code to Prevent and Respond to Gender-based Violence 2025

- National Code of Practice for Providers of Education and Training to Overseas Students 2018 standard 6

Scope

(3) The policy applies to:

- a. all students, employees, senior leadership, governance committee members, contractors, affiliated organisations and other members of the University community as defined under Section 5 - Glossary when engaged in University-related activities
- b. all University-related activities, on and off campus, including but not limited to:
 - i. teaching, study and research activities

Section 2 - Policy

Part A - Principles

(4) The University supports the objects of the National Higher Education Code to Prevent and Respond to Gender-based Violence 2025 to reduce the incidence of gender-based violence in higher education.

(5) Students, staff and other members of the University community must not engage in gender-based violence. Such behaviour is unacceptable and is not tolerated.

(6) The University recognises that:

- a. gender-based violence is any form of physical or non-physical violence, harassment, abuse or threats, based on gender, that results in, or is likely to result in, harm, coercion, control, fear or deprivation of liberty or autonomy.
- b. gender-based violence is rooted in harmful social norms, gender stereotypes and gender inequalities; it can affect anyone, regardless of their age, gender identity, socio-economic status, ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation, cultural background, ability, LGBTIQ+ identity or family structure
- c. certain groups experience disproportionate impacts; women, First Nations people, culturally and linguistically diverse communities, people with disability and people of diverse sexual orientation and gender identity are at higher risk, and the overlapping aspects of a person's identity (intersectionality) can increase vulnerability and shape how gender-based violence is experienced
- d. the impact of gender-based violence extends beyond private life and can affect a person's work or study environment, even if the experience occurred outside of the University or where the experience is historic.

(7) Reports of gender-based violence (recent or historic) that relate to University students, staff and others associated with the University community will be treated seriously.

(8) The safety and wellbeing of persons disclosing or reporting gender-based violence is the priority. Processes for disclosure management, disciplinary actions and support provision will be evidence-based, trauma informed and person-centred, and aim to minimise distress and uphold the dignity and agency of persons involved.

(9) Sexual assault, sexual harassment and other gender-based violence may constitute misconduct/serious misconduct and can be a valid reason for dismissal, exclusion or expulsion where committed by members of the University community.

(10) All members of the University community have the right to be treated with dignity and respect, and to work or study in a safe environment. In addition to the principles above, violence in any form (physical or non-physical), regardless of who uses it, experiences it or the basis of it, is unacceptable. Anyone who experiences or witnesses any form of violence in relation to the University is encouraged to report this. See the Bullying, Discrimination and Harassment Prevention Policy and/or Complaints Management Policy.

Part B - Framework for preventing and responding to gender-based violence

(11) The University adopts the following approaches to enacting the standards set out in the National Higher Education Code to Prevent and Respond to Gender-based Violence 2025.

Standard 1: Accountable leadership and governance

(12) The Gender-based Violence Prevention and Response Plan (GBV Plan) sets out the University's whole-of-organisation approach to preventing and responding to gender-based violence, which prioritises the safety and support of students and staff.

(13) University officers and bodies with accountability for leadership and governance in relation to gender-based violence are summarised here, and in further detail at Part C – Responsibilities.

- a. The Vice-Chancellor, as the University's principal executive officer, is accountable for compliance with the National Higher Education Code to Prevent and Respond to Gender-based Violence 2025.
- b. Organisational units with specific areas of accountability and responsibility as per Part C.
- c. All managers and supervisors (including teaching staff) are responsible for understanding the relevant policy and legislative requirements and making reasonable efforts to ensure that workplaces and study environments are respectful, safe and free from gender-based violence.
- d. The Audit and Risk Committee is the University Council committee responsible for receiving reports on student and staff safety and wellbeing, including deidentified reports of gender-based violence.

Standard 2: Safe environments and systems

(14) The University works to provide safe environments and accommodation for everyone, supported by prevention efforts and responsive systems that protect our community.

(15) Prevention approaches:

- a. Staff and students must comply with relevant training and Working with Children Check requirements under the Child Safety Policy.
- b. Appointment, promotion and reward policies and systems implemented in accordance with the GBV Plan to ensure that:
 - i. prospective employees and University Council members, and all student accommodation staff, will be asked to declare whether they have been determined to have engaged in conduct that constitutes gender-based violence, and that risks arising from any such declarations will be considered when determining the person's suitability for appointment or engagement, consistent with the University's duty of care to students and staff

- ii. risks arising from the engagement of persons to perform duties or functions on behalf of the University who are not employees (such as volunteers, visiting, adjunct or honorary appointments, contractors, consultants, labour-hire companies, etc) are identified and managed, consistent with the University's duty of care to students and staff
 - iii. substantiated findings of gender-based violence against all employees in the course of their employment will be considered when determining promotions, recognition and rewards.
- c. Employees must declare and have appropriate management actions approved for all existing or previous intimate and close personal relationships that create an actual, potential or perceived conflict of interest or could interfere with their official duties in accordance with the Conflict of Interest Procedure and Personal Relationships in the Workplace Guidelines. This may include intimate personal relationships with another employee or a student. Any existing or previous intimate personal relationship between student accommodation staff and residents of student accommodation that the University owns, operates or manages must be declared.
- d. Student wellbeing and safety is prioritised in physical and online teaching and learning environments – including sites of work-integrated learning and clinical placements to ensure these are equitable, accessible, respectful and safe. Risks associated with work-integrated learning activities are identified and managed as per the Work-integrated Learning Procedure.

(16) Response approaches:

- a. When appropriate and in consultation with the person affected, alternative teaching, research, research supervision, employment or living arrangements may be explored to ensure the safety of students and staff following gender-based violence allegations (see, for example, the Sexual Harm Response Procedure – Students).
- b. Any agreement or settlement between the University and a discloser of gender-based violence will not:
 - i. include a non-disclosure agreement unless this is requested by the discloser
 - ii. prevent the discloser from sharing their experience for the purpose of seeking support and advice
 - iii. prevent the University from complying with its reporting obligations under the National Higher Education Code to Prevent and Respond to Gender-based Violence 2025
 - iv. contain a non-disparagement clause that could have the effect of requiring the discloser to keep their experience of gender-based violence confidential.

Standard 3: Knowledge and capacity

(17) The University will build the knowledge and capability of staff and students to safely and effectively prevent and respond to gender-based violence, in accordance with the GBV Plan, to ensure that:

- a. Ongoing, comprehensive prevention education and training is delivered to students, leadership and staff. This includes training appropriately tailored to the environment for student accommodation residents and staff, and any other employees whose substantive role is in connection with student accommodation owned, operated or managed by the University.
- b. Evidence-informed communication and messaging is promoted and disseminated across the University's study, work, living and social environments.
- c. Specific positions and roles are identified that must undertake specialised education and training for providing trauma-informed and person-centred responses to disclosures of gender-based violence. Training will be provided as part of their onboarding process and subsequently on an annual basis. These positions and roles

- will include student accommodation staff, and may include other students in leadership positions, University leadership, employees, and any other persons for who the University considers annual training to be necessary.
- d. Evidence-based prevention initiatives, programs and campaigns are adopted and are evaluated to inform future prevention initiatives.
 - e. Risk assessments conducted under the National Higher Education Code to Prevent and Respond to Gender-based Violence 2025 are undertaken by employees or other persons with appropriate expertise in gender-based violence and competencies in working with specific student and staff cohorts (such as First Nations people, culturally and linguistically diverse communities, people with disability and people of diverse sexual orientation and gender identity).
 - f. Employees or other persons involved in responding to formal reports, conducting investigations, or determining disciplinary proceedings related to gender-based violence:
 - i. have appropriate knowledge, experience and expertise in gender-based violence and trauma informed and person-centred approaches
 - ii. undertake training in gender-based violence and trauma-informed and person-centred approaches every three years (or have equivalent currency of training or expertise if they are engaged from outside the University).

(18) The University has adopted definitions and criteria for sexual assault, sexual harm and consent to support a common understanding and consistent approach across the University community for identifying, preventing and responding to sexual harm. These are set out in the Sexual Harm Response Procedure - Students (see the Policy addendum - Gender-based violence provisions)

Standard 4: Safety and support

(19) The University aims to provide responses and support services that are safe and person-centred through the following approaches:

- a. Policies that support prevention of and effective responses to gender-based violence, that enable disclosers to achieve their educational outcomes, and that prioritise the physical and psychological safety and wellbeing of students and staff.
- b. Procedures and processes that provide advice and support options for persons who wish to disclose or formally report instances of gender-based violence, respondents who have had an allegation of gender-based violence made against them, and employees and other persons involved in receiving and responding to disclosures and formal reports, such as the following:
 - i. The Sexual Harm Response Procedure - Students, which sets out how incidents of sexual harm relating to students can be disclosed or formally reported to the University, how these will be responded to, and the support available (including academic support) for those involved.
 - ii. Assessing disclosures or formal reports in relation to student accommodation owned, operated or managed by the University and implementing responses proportionate to the risk, as per the Crisis Management Procedure, and implementing precautionary or interim measures if appropriate as per the Sexual Harm Response Procedure - Students or the Student Misconduct Rule 2020.
 - iii. The Complaints Management Policy and procedures, which set out how complaints, including complaints such as reports of gender-based violence made by staff and other members of the University community are received and responded to, with reference as relevant to provisions of the:
 - Domestic and Family Violence Procedure \(Staff\)
 - Bullying, Discrimination and Harassment Prevention Procedure
 - Charles Sturt University Enterprise Agreement.
- c. When responding to disclosures and formal reports, the University will, where possible, consult with the person who experienced the violence and take their wishes into account.

- d. The University has capacity to investigate formal reports of gender-based violence that occur in the following contexts:
- i. University related events (on or off campus)
 - ii. University campuses and University owned, operated, or managed student accommodation
 - iii. work-integrated learning (WIL) placements to the extent practicable with host agencies
 - iv. University-organised activities (on and off campus)
 - v. University work areas, including offices, teaching spaces, research facilities, and other University-controlled environments.
- e. Although there may be situations where it is not possible or appropriate for the University to investigate a report, the University will offer appropriate support services and referrals for affected students and consider reasonable measures to ensure a safer community.
- f. Disclosures and reports of gender-based violence are kept confidential except where the discloser consents to information being shared or disclosed for a specific purpose, or where the University is obliged by law or otherwise to meet legal obligations or meet its duty of care to the discloser or another person. This may include:
- i. reporting child protection breaches in accordance with the Child Safety Policy
 - ii. reporting or disclosing reports of sexual assault or sexual harassment in accordance with the Sexual Harm Response Procedure - Students
 - iii. reporting any suspected, alleged or known incidents of sexual exploitation, harassment or abuse in relation to the University's award courses that involve students, their family or children, staff, partners, in accordance with the PSEAH Policy.

Standard 5: Safe processes

(20) Processes for disclosing, reporting and responding to gender-based violence aim to be safe, timely and provide the discloser choice and autonomy:

- a. Individuals affected by gender-based violence may choose to make a disclosure or a formal report:
- i. Disclosures can be made to the University about a person's experience of gender-based violence. The purpose of a disclosure is to seek trauma-informed support and/or explore options for addressing or resolving the alleged conduct. This can include seeking support to make a formal report.
 - ii. Formal reports can be made to the University through formal reporting channels if the person wants the University to act beyond offering or providing support, which can include (without limitation) an investigation and disciplinary actions in appropriate circumstances. (See clause 19d. for contexts where the University has capacity to investigate).
 - iii. Disclosures and formal reports – including anonymous reports - can be made via:
 - Project Zero website (Prevention and Support Specialist program) for students and past students
 - Complaints, grievances and whistleblowing website and/or Employee Assistance Program for staff and other members of the University community.
- b. A person who has experienced sexual harm or gender-based violence has the right to decide whether to make a formal report.
- c. A person making a formal report does not have to specify what action they want the University to take, however, if specific action is requested, the University will consider the request in relation to its impact on the individual and the safety and wellbeing of the individual and other students, staff, and affiliates.

(21) To support the outcomes of Standard 5 and the timely finalisation of formal reports of gender-based violence, the University will implement processes (as per the GBV Plan) to ensure that, notwithstanding the timelines and processes stated in other University policy documents:

- a. formal reports of gender-based violence will be finalised within 45 business days, including finalisation of disciplinary processes, and appeals processes will be finalised within 20 business days
- b. extensions to the timeframes at sub-clause a. must be approved by the Vice-Chancellor, who must be satisfied that the extension is required in the context, and
- c. any person who makes a formal report of gender-based violence will be given written notice and advice about the investigation and outcome processes, including how these may vary from those stated in the current policy or procedure (such as the Sexual Harm Response Procedure - Students, Student Misconduct Rule 2020, Complaints Management Procedure, or Complaints Procedure - Workplace).

Standard 6: Data, evidence and impact
