

Communications and Marketing Policy

Section 1 - Purpose

(1) This policy sets out principles, responsibilities and authorities for communication and marketing activities of Charles Sturt University (the University), including:

- a. brand governance
- b. marketing and advertising
- c. communications to students and staff
- d. engagement with media, and public and personal comment by University staff
- e. governance of the University website and social media channels.

(2) This policy supports compliance with:

- a. the University's Statement on Academic Freedom and Freedom of Speech
- b. Education Services for Overseas Students Act 2000
- c. National Code of Practice for Providers of Education and Training to Overseas Students 2018
- d. Higher Education Standards Framework \(Threshold Standards\) 2021
- e. Competition and Consumer Act 2010
- f. Privacy and Personal Information Protection Act 1998
- g. Spam Act 2003
- h. in-country regulations relevant to the recruitment or marketing of prospective students.

Scope

(3) This policy applies to all University staff (including honorary, visiting and adjunct position holders), students, partner institutions (subject to agreement terms) and controlled entities. See also the supporting procedures for relevant audiences and scope.

Section 2 - Policy

Part A - Communication and marketing principles

(4) Effective communication with the University's stakeholders, including students, staff, the public, media, and government, is critical to the University's ability to meet its strategic objectives, promote continued public support and community engagement, and build the University's public reputation for excellence in teaching and research.

(5) The University brand communicates the University's vision and purpose, strategic direction, values and the unique reputation of the University's services and products to stakeholders. It must be applied consistently in all the ways we communicate and act, as well as through our visual identity.

(6) Centrally managed and coordinated communication channels for marketing, advertising, media engagement, student communications, social media and website environments enable effective communications, legislative compliance and consistency with the University's brand and strategic objectives.

(7) Communication and marketing activities will be consistent with the following:

- a. First Nations peoples ways of knowing, being and doing are respected.
- b. Communications respect the diversity of the University community and are consistent with the University's Cultural Guidelines, Communicating without Bias Guidelines and tone of voice advice.
- c. The privacy of individuals is respected, and personal information is managed and protected as set out in the Privacy Management Plan.
- d. The principles of academic freedom and freedom of speech are upheld, as set out in the Statement on Academic Freedom and Freedom of Speech.
- e. Regulatory and industry standards and codes of practice are complied with.
- f. The University's Brand Guidelines and Editorial Style Guide are followed for consistency in tone of voice, writing conventions and the visual and written representations of the University brand.
- g. The University's brand, ethos and values are reflected in the way that staff and students act and communicate in their day to day activities. It is the responsibility of all University staff to promote and protect the University brand in all communication activities related to the University.

Part B - Brand governance and corporate identity

Application of this part

(8) The University brand includes:

- a. the University's name, how that name is visually expressed through its marks, logo, design, typography, colours, devices, elements and imagery (visual identity)
- b. its tone of voice and how these extend throughout the University's communications (such as stationery, advertising, marketing, publications, websites and electronic media, signage, merchandising, media releases, teaching materials, speeches, uniforms, motor vehicles and products).

(9) The University brand must be used consistently in all forms of University communication and in compliance with the following guidelines and procedures:

- a. The Communications and Marketing Procedure - Brand Governance sets out the processes and authorities for managing and using the University brand.
- b. The Brand Guidelines is the authoritative reference source for the University brand and is the official register of all approved strategic sub-brand logos, devices, emblems, colours, and typefaces.
- c. The Editorial Style Guide sets out the requirements for tone of voice, preferred terminology, grammar and writing conventions.
- d. The Facilities and Premises Procedure - Corporate Signage sets out the processes and responsibilities for signage used on University premises.

(10) Any controlled entity that wishes to market its activities in a manner that is different to that of the University's brand governance processes and Brand Guidelines must seek approval from the University Council before doing so. Council may request a detailed marketing proposal in these circumstances.

Authorities and responsibilities

(11) Delegation Schedule A - Governance and Legal states the delegations for the University brand, including authorities for:

- a. approval of the University's logo or variations to the logo
- b. use of the University logo and use of third-party logos in conjunction with the University logo
- c. creation of strategic sub-brands
- d. registration of trademarks and business names.

(12) In addition to the delegated authorities, the following authorities and responsibilities for brand governance and corporate identity are given through this policy or as otherwise noted:
